The iconic Cubb's designed by Inés Benavides covered in leather by Sol&luna artisans

When The Art of Leather and creation and talent merge, the result is a surprising collaboration between Inés Benavides and Sol & Luna. A double satisfaction that you find in life!. In the professional side for the result of an absolutely wonderful product and personally, for the joy of working with one of those friends that one is lucky to have! highlights Carolina Sánchez de Movellán from Sol&luna.

If Sol & Luna is known for the Art of Leather in its work of luxury craftsmanship, it was an opportunity to have the renowned interior designer and furniture creator, Inés Benavides, to gather professionalism and knowledge by making a limited edition, the Iconic Cubbs designed by Inés Benavides but, this time, fully lined in leather.

The result? ... Fascinating. Originally, these exuberant cubes, bright, colorful and very striking made of metal, with a touch PopArt, have been transformed from the hand of Sol & Luna in soft, delicate, more subtle pieces. The meticulous craftsmanship of Sol & Luna with premium leather has convert the Cubb in a piece of Art. With an effect as striking as the originals, for the material with which they are covered as, for the colors used, an elegant tile / orange color and a warm red color, it is surprising to note that they do not lose a touch of modernity and avant-garde . To which we must add the touch of leather, soft as if it were a second skin. In short, the final result is just as versatile as the original Cubbs but with a more refined look.

The artisanal work that Sol & Luna has done in this collaboration fits in perfectly with the defense that Inés Benavides makes of the craft work and the level of demand it has in this type of collaboration. I agree on how complicated and difficult the lining process has been with the realization of the folds that have had to be recreated in a meticulous way to obtain a natural and perfect appearance. Likewise, both recognize that the final result has far exceeded all their expectations. I completely agree with Inés Benavides when she says: "a master job. Impeccable".
